

I do not support allowing Bell South total control over independent servers. By doing so this could have a drastic effect on ISP to provide DSL service along with there current service. This would also require Sonic.net to charge higher prices for services currently being provided to its customers.